

Frank Harmon To Judge Austin Design Awards Program

May 2, 2007 (Raleigh, NC) – Frank Harmon, FAIA, principal of the award-winning firm Frank Harmon Architect in Raleigh, served as a judge for the Austin, Texas, Chapter of the American Institute of Architects' 2007 design awards program. The judging took place on April 27.

AIA/Austin's Design Awards Program recognizes excellence in architectural design by its members. Projects submitted could be located anywhere but they had to be designed by a member of the Austin chapter.

In February, Harmon served as a juror for AIA/New York City's design awards program.

Frank Harmon is a professor of architecture at the College of Design, North Carolina State University, and has served on many design awards juries, including the national jury for the American Institute of Architects' 2005 Institute Honor Awards. He is currently serving on the U.S. General Services Administration's National Register of Peer Professionals to improve public buildings. He is also a veteran speaker at regional and national design conferences, including the 2005, 2006 and the recent 2007 National AIA Convention, where he presented his popular "Architects Discuss America's New Regionalism" seminar.

For more information on Frank Harmon, visit <http://www.frankharmon.com>.